Amendments to the Abstract (where added material is shown in underlined type, deleted - material is shown in strikeout type:)

A transformer having at least one primary winding and one secondary winding is disclosed. The windings are disposed between walls of the a first and second bobbin members member. In preferred embodiments, the creepage distance between the windings can be increased by providing a flange on one of the walls of one of the bobbin members.